Dear Harold:

Please pardon my delay in communicating with you, but since I last spoke to you I have been out of the city on an extended business trip.

I have tried to locate counsel for you. Indeed I have spoken to a half dozen qualified attorneys. But all to no avail. Apparently, the qualified men are so damned busy that they are unwilling to take on any case as elaborate as yours would be.

I am certain that somewhere an attorney is available, but you certainly desire a competent one. And I am unwilling to recommend any other type to you.

Sorry I've failed.

Sincerely,

Milton C. Denbo
